

The CEU's CCC The Covid-19 Community Code

We members of the CEU community must do our best to keep our community safe and healthy. The COVID-19 epidemic highlights more than ever our interdependence, and the importance of trust, responsibility, and cooperation.

All students at CEU are therefore expected to adhere to Austrian and Viennese regulations aimed at preventing exposure to COVID-19, and to adhere to CEU's Vienna Campus Covid-19 Protocol, urging social distancing, wearing masks when indoors, and limited group events on-campus and off-campus.

The events you choose to attend, or host, can affect the entire CEU community. If you do not respect university and/or government guidelines, please be aware that you may be subject to a disciplinary process. This is especially true for any student who hosts, or attends, an indoor event of a size that exceeds the maximum number of people allowed according to official regulations.

The CEU's Code of Ethics considers "conduct which threatens or damages the personal safety or health or assets of others" grounds for disciplinary review.

If there is credible evidence that Community Code has been breached, then the Dean of Undergraduate Studies will pursue an investigation, and can choose to launch a disciplinary procedure to be reviewed by CEU's Disciplinary Committee.

Students who act irresponsibly on-campus, or off-campus, by willingly engaging in risky behaviour that increases probability of exposure to COVID-19 infection, may be asked to immediately cease attending in-person classes until further review by medical and university authorities.

Violation of our Community Code may result in immediate measures, as specified in CEU's Code of Ethics. The Dean of Undergraduate Studies will review the evidence, and will determine whether further disciplinary action is needed.

Depending on the severity of the breach, and the frequency of the breach, the Dean of Undergraduate Studies may recommend to CEU's Disciplinary Committee immediate measures such as:

1. A written reprimand;
2. Temporary expulsion from all or certain university premises;
3. Suspension of a scholarship or grant;
4. Suspension of a student status.

No authority at the university is keen on taking such measures, and we are all counting on a sustained collective effort, and a spirit of trust and mutual care.

I, the undersigned, have read this Community Code and will do my best to uphold it.
